■ Market commentary

In a sharp reversal of fortunes which began at the end of September, very few asset classes produced a positive return last month. The classic safe-haven assets including government bonds, gold and the Japanese yen produced positive returns, with the notable exception of US Treasuries which fell 0.5%. Equities suffered the brunt of the selling, led by Asia, down over 10% in the month, while most other regions fell 7-9% in US dollar terms. Despite a bounce in the final days of the month, the MSCI World Index declined 7.6%, a slightly smaller fall than the 8.5% decline in emerging markets. Only Latin America produced a positive return, driven by a recovery in currencies and a surge in Brazilian equities.

As expected in a risk-off period, bond markets held up far better than equities, although credit came under pressure. High yield and investment grade corporate bonds both produced negative returns of around 1.5% and emerging market bonds fell by a similar amount. Government bond markets including UK Gilts, German Bunds, Japanese and Australian bonds all produced small positive returns but US Treasuries declined and the global bond index was down 1.4% in dollar terms due to continued dollar strength. Since the February low point, the trade weighted dollar index has risen by 10%.

The worrying undercurrents which were evident in September, including the continuing tightening of monetary policy especially by the Federal Reserve, evidence that the US-China trade war was beginning to impact economic activity in China, the looming Italian budget and the ongoing Brexit saga, were all factors contributing to the sharp turn in investor sentiment at the beginning of October.

The two big issues set to dominate markets in the months ahead are monetary tightening by the Fed and the impact of the US-China trade war on growth. There are still few signs of excess or capacity shortages which might trigger an inflationary surge, and the constraints to growth and likely slowdown next year could well extend the cycle for some time ahead. Greater resilience is warranted in portfolios, and there are ample reasons for a more cautious approach, but valuations in equities have improved significantly as a result of weak markets and strong corporate earnings, and hence the sharp setbacks in recent weeks present opportunities to add to positions selectively.

■ Risk warnings and important notes

Collective investments are generally medium to long-term investments. The value of units may go down as well as up and past performance is not necessarily a guide to the future.

Collective investments are traded at ruling prices. Commission and incentives may be paid and, if so, would be included in the overall costs. All performance is calculated on a total return basis, after deduction of all fees and commissions and in US dollar terms. Forward pricing is used.

The Fund invests in other collective investments, which levy their own charges. This could result in a higher fee structure for the Fund.

Fluctuations in the value of the underlying funds, the income from them and changes in interest rates mean that the value of the Fund and any income arising from it may fall, as well as rise, and is not guaranteed.

Deductions of charges and expenses mean that you may not get back the amount you invested.

The fees charged within the Fund and by the managers of the underlying funds are not guaranteed and may change in the future.

Higher risk investments may be subject to sudden and larger falls in value in comparison to other investments. Higher risk investments include, but are not limited to, investments in smaller companies, even in developed markets, investments in emerging markets or single country debt or equity funds and investments in high yield or non-investment grade debt.

Notwithstanding ongoing monitoring of the underlying funds within the Fund, there can be no assurance that the performance of the funds will achieve their stated objectives.

The Fund will contain shares or units in underlying funds that invest internationally. The value of an investor's investment and the income arising from it will therefore be subject to exchange rate fluctuations.

Foreign securities may have additional material risks, depending on the specific risks affecting that country, such as: potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds; macroeconomic risks; political risks; foreign exchange risks; tax risks; settlement risks; and potential limitations on the availability of market information.

The Fund may contain shares or units in underlying funds that do not permit dealing every day. Investments in such funds will only be realisable on their dealing days. It is not possible to assess the proper market price of these investments other than on the fund's dealing days.

No borrowing will be undertaken by the Fund except for the purpose of meeting short term liquidity requirements. Borrowings will not exceed 10% of the net asset value of the Fund. For such purpose, the securities of the Fund may be pledged. No scrip borrowing will be allowed. The Cell is not permitted to enter into any form of borrowing or loan arrangement with other cells of the Company nor other collective investment schemes of the Manager.

While derivative instruments may be used for hedging purposes, the risk remains that the relevant instrument may not necessarily fully correlate to the investments in the Fund and accordingly not fully reflect changes in the value of the investment, giving rise to potential net losses.

Forward contracts are neither traded on exchanges nor standardised. Principals dealing in these markets are also not required to make markets in the currencies they trade, with the result that these markets may experience periods of illiquidity. Banks and dealers will normally act as principals and usually each transaction is negotiated on an individual basis.

The Manager has the right to close the Fund to new investors, in order to manage it more efficiently, in accordance with its mandate.

Investment in the Fund may not be suitable for all investors. Investors should obtain advice from their financial adviser before proceeding with an investment.

Investors are reminded that any forecasts and/or commentary included in this MDD are not guaranteed to occur, and merely reflect the interpretation of the public information and propriety research available to the Investment Manager at a particular point in time.
